Soluteo becomes a premium member of Orange Partner – Field Force Mobile Solution incorporated into internal catalogue

January 16, 2006 - Soluteo, a specialist in BlackBerry® based mobile communication technologies, is proud to announce that it has been accepted by Orange as a premium member of Orange Partner, the organization's partner and developer program. In addition, Soluteo's Field Force Mobile Technical Maintenance solution has been successfully incorporated into the Orange Partner internal catalogue.

Soluteo's premium membership status gives its team access to the Orange Developer Centre test labs and development facilities, and provides access to information about the company under an NDA. Soluteo developers also benefit from one-on-one contact with members of the program team who provide individual feedback on their mobile solution ideas and finished solutions.

"As a premium member of the Orange Partner program, Soluteo was able to use the online and physical components of the program to develop and submit its proposed solutions to the team for possible inclusion into our catalogue," said Steve Glagow, Director of Orange Partner.

The Field Force Mobile Technical Maintenance solution from Soluteo has been tested for compatibility with Orange handsets on the Orange network and has been successfully incorporated into the Orange Partner internal catalogue. This catalogue of mobile content, applications and solutions is deemed suitable for commercialization to a customer base of more than 57 million in 17 countries. "Soluteo's Field Force Mobile solution met the commercial and technical requirements and was deemed worthy of inclusion. It has many features of potential interest to our business market in many of the Orange countries," added Steve Glagow.
